MUNICIPALITY'S BUDGET LEAPS TO R241,5 MILLION

More than R90 million will be spent on infrastructure projects to boost service delivery, create jobs, fight poverty and address inequalities

Greater Giyani Mayor Cllr Patrick Hlungwani recently tabled a R241,5 million Budget for the 2013-2014 financial year as the municipality continued to accelerate its service delivery pace.

The budget represents a R30,5 million or 14% increase compared with the previous financial year's figure of R211,8 million.

The bulk of the budget – about R210,5 million – will come from grants, including equitable shares, the Expanded Public Works Programme (EPWP), Finance Management Grant (FMG), Municipal Systems Improvement Grant (MSIG), Integrated National Electrification Programme (INEP), Municipal Infrastructure Grant (MIG) and Local Government Sector Education Training Authority (LGSETA).

The rest of the revenue – about R31 million – will be self-generated by the municipality, with revenue sources including licences; registration of vehicles; house rentals; market rentals; use of sportsfields, library facilities, caravan park, golf course and community halls; sale of refuse bins; sale of sites, etc.

Cllr Hlungwani said of the R241,5 million that will be spent this financial

EDITOR'S NOTE

It all began with a speech

The 2013-2014 financial year promises to be a year of action, action and more action for the Greater Giyani Municipality.

With our annual budget leaping by 14% to R241,5 million, we have in our possession enough ammunition to accelerate service delivery – including the provision of better roads, water resources and electricity – in our communities.

Given the relatively limited resources at our disposal – R241,5 million is welcome but it can never be enough – the municipality is making great strides towards meeting the expectations of residents.

The content of the Budget Speech delivered by the Mayor, Cllr Patrick Hlungwani, on May 24 is another clear indication of this administration's seriousness to meet its public mandate.

No wonder the speech was so overwhelmingly and enthusiastically received by stakeholders across the spectrum.

No wonder Rito has devoted no fewer than five pages on projects and programmes articulated in the speech. We hope you will find the special "Budget Speech package" that we have prepared for you informative and enlightening.

Our hearts are filled with pride after one of our best-performing schools – Risinga High – added another feather to its cap by winning the social responsibility category of the Students for the Advancement of Global Entrepreneurship competition and going on to represent South Africa on the world stage in Abuja, Nigeria.

Lastly, may I take this opportunity to congratulate Giyani All Stars on lifting the Mayoral Cup and Mninginisi Brave Ladies for clinching the ladies' category earlier this year.

Those who did not make it should remember that it is not the end of the road.

Until next time!

FROM THE MUNICIPAL MANAGER'S DESK

Service delivery gathers momentum

July 1 marked the beginning of the eagerly anticipated 2013-2014 financial year, which has brought with it a new sense of hope for the majority of our people.

This new hope was triggered largely by the service delivery-orientated Budget Speech delivered by the Mayor, Cllr Patrick Hlungwani, on May 24.

The speech was very specific in outlining the projects to be implemented during this financial year.

This was after the council had laid the necessary groundwork to ensure the smooth and successful implementation of the various projects as planned.

Among other things, the council adopted the IDP Process Plan to assist in the review of the work done during the previous financial year and to plan for the current financial year.

The municipality has not only completed its forward-planning but it has also started to embark on the implementation of a number of projects with accelerated urgency.

What is also of significance is the fact that these initiatives will go a long way towards creating job opportunities for our people and contributing in no small measure to local economic development.

The following are some of the projects that are currently under way:

- The installation of street lights in Giyani Section E;
- The upgrading of the stormwater drainage system and roads in the Giyani CBD;

- The tarring of a gravel road at Nyagelani in Giyani Section A;
- The construction of the civic centre building, which is at an advanced stage;
- The tarring of roads at Sikhunyani, Ngobe, Nkuri and Maswanganyi villages;
- The conducting of a feasibility study on the Shangoni road project, which has been completed;
- The development of the land acquired through the partnership between the Greater Giyani Municipality and Mabunda Traditional Authority for integrated human settlements. The development will include commercial, residential and other land uses.
- More than 90% of VIP toilets, which have been funded by MDM, have been completed; and
- The electrification of more than 2 000 households in new households in some of the 91 villages under the jurisdiction of the municipality is under way.

It is also worth noting that in terms of the municipal human resources, a legal adviser, public works manager and technical services director have been appointed. We hope that these appointments will go a long way towards ensuring the smooth delivery of basic services to our people.

ERRATUM

In our Volume 3, 2012 Summer Edition, we inadvertently referred to one of the speakers during an imbizo at Nsavulani village as Hosi Nsavulani.

To put the record straight, Nsavulani village falls under Hosi Mahumani. It has been brought to our attention that the person who addressed the imbizo and quoted in our front page story was in fact not Hosi Mahumani or someone authorised to speak on his behalf.

We also acknowledge the fact that either Hosi Mahumani or his authorised representative were supposed to have spoken on behalf of the residents of Nsavulani village at the imbizo and not by the speaker who was erroneously referred to as Hosi Nsavulani.

As a municipality, we have a responsibility to respect the tribal authority's status quo as determined by the Department of Cooperative Governance, Human Settlement and Traditional Affairs.

We, therefore, profusely apologise to Hosi Mahumani for the inconvenience and embarrassment this may have caused him and his subjects.

Municipality's budget leaps to R241,5 million

year, more than R90 million would be channelled to infrastructure projects to improve service delivery, create jobs, address inequalities and fight poverty.

He said a further R10 million would be spent on repairs and maintenance, while R40 million would cover general expenses.

"With these allocations, we aim to bring about tangible changes to the lives of our people.

"President Jacob Zuma has, through his State of the Nation Address, explicitly given us orders regarding what the government must do to better the lives of our people. Our long-standing objectives are to reduce poverty, create jobs and ensure a better life for all," the Mayor said.

Clr Hlungwani noted that the Budget came at a time when the economy seemed to be on its way to a recovery.

"While we acknowledge that the economic outlook of our country is improving, we cannot ignore the reality that our people do not care about the strength or weakness of the economy. All they care about is a realistic service delivery plan, such as the one we are presenting here today.

"With or without the global economic downturn, we are prepared as council to pull together for the benefit of the communities we serve.

"The challenge facing us is whether we will sustain our achievements. But as a municipality and council, we must ask ourselves whether we have the ability, the will and the wisdom to take a giant leap forward in the development of Greater Giyani," Cllr Hlungwani said.

The Budget Speech was applauded by most opposition parties.

It was described as "clear and relevant" to the challenges facing the municipality.

"In future we would like the delivery of the Budget Speech to be done the way it was done today because it touched on all the areas that are relevant," said Mackson Rikhotso of Ximoko Xa Rixaka.

Municipality in a turnaround

The Greater Giyani Municipality has approved a turnaround strategy to address a number of challenges facing it, including the skills gap and lack of institutional capacity.

Speaking during his Budget Vote, Greater Giyani Mayor Cllr Patrick Hlungwani said there was "a significant improvement as far as the integration of sector priorities and projects into the municipality's Integrated Development Plan (IDP) was concerned".

"We received a medium rating in terms of the credibility of the IDP and we plan to improve from this rating in the coming financial year," he said.

Cllr Hlungwani also said the municipality had embarked on an "Operation Clean Audit" drive in line with "the Cooperative Governance, Human Settlements and Traditional Affairs' established structures which support and capacitate municipalities to handle their budgets.

He said he was "happy to report that the progress made so far is promising".

Referring to the R14,9 million that was falsely reported in the mainstream media to be missing, Cllr Hlungwani said: "We are working very hard to retrieve long-lost data that will more likely provide answers for the Auditor-General, and thereby clear us."

He said the fact that the municipality received a disclaimer in 2012-2013 financial year was a cause for concern "because there were serious [issues] raised in the report, especially on key controls," which needed to be corrected.

He also hailed the land deal between the Mabunda Royal Family and the municipality, which saw the release of vast tracts of land for development in Giyani.

"The agreement will bring great development in the municipality. We would like to urge other traditional leaders to follow suit," Cllr Hlungwani said.

"The agreement will bring great development in the municipality. We would like to urge other traditional leaders to follow suit,"

Charter charts the way forward

In a new bid to achieve a clean audit by 2014, the Greater Giyani Municipality approved an audit committee charter to guide a four-member audit committee on the matter.

The charter was presented during a council sitting in Giyani recently.

Greater Giyani Mayor Cllr Patrick Hlungwani said the committee was established by the Mopani District Municipality to look into the finances of all the five municipalities under its jurisdiction. These are Greater Giyani, Greater Tzaneen, Greater Letaba, Ba-Phalaborwa and Maruleng.

"The audit committee has already been appointed by the district. It has been there all along but because we did not have a charter it was not effective, hence the development of the document.

"We needed to have an operational framework within which we could interact with the committee members," he said.

The first party to signal its approval of the document was Ximoko Xa Rixaka.

The motion was seconded by Cllr Abraham Manganyi of the African National Congress.

Road infrastructure backlog 'receiving serious attention'

The Greater Giyani Municipality has written to the Limpopo Department of Roads and Transport requesting it to intervene as a matter of urgency in the provision of road infrastructure on some of the major arteries within the municipality.

Many residents have in the recent past taken to the streets in protest against the backlog in the provision of road infrastructure, especially on key arteries such as Siyandhani-Nkuri, Homu 14B-Vuvehli, Thombo-Hlomela and Babangu-Msengi.

The residents have demanded that the roads be either regularly maintained or turned into tar.

"We cannot downplay the seriousness of the backlog we are having in as far as road infrastructure is concerned," Greater Giyani Mayor Cllr Patrick Hlungwani said during his 2013-2014 Budget Speech.

He also said there were still several regional roads within the municipality's boundaries – including Shangoni and Mageva Kheyi roads – that had not been tarred.

"With the delay in the implementation of intermodal transport system by the Department of Roads and Transport, we have set aside a budget to reconstruct the pothole-prone road between the Giyani CBD and Masingita filling station," the Mayor said.

The municipality has budgeted to spend more than R40 million in the 2013-2014 financial year on the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges.

President Zuma visits

Four years after declaring it a presidential pilot project under the Comprehensive Rural Development Programme (CRDP) – triggering a series of developmental projects – President Jacob Zuma recently returned to Muyexe to find the village had changed for the better. But unfortunately, a few of the old challenges and niggling problems still persist.

The president's visit to the village – about 40km from Giyani – was part of the Presidency's Performance Monitoring and Evaluation Programme to gauge the pace of service delivery throughout the country.

Accompanied by a number of ministers and MECs, President Zuma visited several developmental projects and spoke to community members to hear what they had to say about developments and challenges facing their area.

He also met Hatlane Muyexe High School learners, who told him that there were many youths in the village who had passed matric but could not further their studies because of financial constraints.

A dismayed President Zuma responded: "That cannot happen because our government is very much aware of that challenge and has developed some means, such as FETs (Further Education and Training colleges), to address it."

He instructed his officials to take down the names of the matriculants in question so they could be registered at FET colleges next year.

The president also interacted with several project owners, including members of a perfume-making cooperative run by the youth.

He advised his team to assist with the marketing of the project so it could grow.

To support the business, President Zuma even bought seven bottles of perfumes at R80 each.

Members of the Macena Gardening Project told him how the severe water shortages being experienced in the village were affecting their yields.

In his response, President Zuma said the residents' problems would soon be a thing of the past as a pipeline – from Nsami Dam – was currently being installed.

"We expect that pipeline to address all your water issues," he said.

He also promised the community that all the problems they had raised during his visit would be attended to as soon as

Ndabezitha Muyexe [Ben Maluleke] asked the president to keep his promise and address the remaining challenges in the village.

"There are many things that remain a challenge here, such as roads, water supply and many others. We would be happy if these could be addressed as promised," he said, thanking the president for the progress made so far in the village.

As far as education is concerned, it was clear that the presidential pilot project has brought about significant change in the lives of learners. High school learners have each been provided with a laptop computer to help them to study, whereas those in primary school have been handed iPads.

SANParks donates R800 000 computer lab to rural school

Limpopo is poised to become South Africa's mining hub and learners in the province must fully prepare themselves to seize the opportunities that this significant economic development will bring about.

This was said by former Limpopo MEC for Education Dickson Masemola during a handover of a state-of-the-art computer laboratory to Masiza High School at Mbaula village, near Giyani, recently.

The laboratory, which boasts 32 computers and cost R800 000 to establish, was donated by the South African National Parks (SANParks) as part of its Corporate Social Investment (CSI) programme, which is targeting disadvantaged schools bordering the Kruger National Park.

In his address, Masemola, who is now MEC for Public Works, said all eyes were now on mineral-rich Limpopo as gold and coal mines in Gauteng and Mpumalanga respectively were being depleted. He urged learners to prepare for the mining revolution in the province.

"The mineral economy of our country is now changing focus to Limpopo. The South Africa of tomorrow will not be economically dependent on Gauteng because gold there has been depleted.

"In Giyani we have discovered gold. We have coal in the Waterberg and Vhembe districts," he said.

The MEC said coal was running out in Witbank and that coal companies had to reduce production to save jobs.

"All roads are now leading to Limpopo – South Africa's future economic hub. We don't want to see you tomorrow become spectators of your own economic development ... you must be ready to take charge of this economic shift," Masemola said.

Kruger National Park Managing Executive Abe Sibiya said previously SANParks's approach to community development was to provide access to benefits accruing from its business.

"We have now, in line with our new vision of 'connecting with society', added a CSI programme through which we have begun to provide facilities and resources that can benefit the whole community," said Sibiya.

Masiza is the first school to benefit from the programme.

"Our aim now is to improve socioeconomic conditions of the rural poor

"Our aim now is to improve socioeconomic conditions of the rural poor in areas bordering the park. We will also be working with municipalities to identify and develop these communities," he said.

Masiza High School Principal Mfundhisi Mabunda said the school welcomed the laboratory as it would help learners to access information.

"It will also help us to ensure that each and every learner at this school is computer literate," he said.

Risinga represents SA in global event in Abuja

A group of learners from Risinga High School, one of the major winners in the national Students for the Advancement of Global Entrepreneurship (SAGE) competition, recently represented South Africa in the SAGE World Cup 2013 in Abuja, Nigeria, where they showcased their entrepreneurial skills among their peers from around the world.

SAGE is an international non-profit organisation that connects secondary school learners to mentors from universities and businesses.

The school was the winner of the competition's social responsibility category.

The learners' project – staging events and organising shows and using the profits for social responsibility purposes – was voted the best idea in the category.

and Tourism Pinky Kekana said SAGE's objective was to prepare the learners to stand for themselves and create jobs for others.

"In this programme young people become innovative and identify initiatives that will help create jobs or provide sustainable income for themselves," she said.

Explaining the idea, Tiyani Chavalala, the leader of the group said: "We buy food parcels, clothes, blanket or whatever we may deem necessary to help a particular family using part of the income we earn from staging shows and organising events. So far we have helped more than 100 families with either clothes or food parcels," he said.

Another Limpopo school that represented the province and South Africa in the 2013 edition of the SAGE World Cup was Dendron High, winner of the entrepreneurial category. The school's learners won the category for their jam-making project using tomatoes.

Speaking at the event, Risinga High School Principal Moses Maswanganyi said the programme helped learners to understand the socioeconomic challenges facing the country.

"It has helped them to understand that they have to be part of the solution to create jobs. This programme encourages learners to take the initiative," he said.

Steven Maringa, Manager of Man'ombe Circuit, applauded the school for its achievement and commended the educators for their hard work.

"These children are where they are today because of your efforts. Let's continue to work and make these children our national assets," he said.

Municipality swoops on illegal traders, stray animals

The Greater Giyani Municipality is getting tougher on illegal traders and stray animals.

With the support of the South African Police Service, the municipality recently raided the town's central business district (CBD), arrested several hawkers and impounded 46 head of cattle found roaming in the streets.

According to municipal spokesperson Steven S Mavunda, the municipality was also planning to rid the CBD of illegally constructed structures.

"However, this has legal implications. But we are in consultation with our legal adviser on how we can go about this matter," he said.

Mavunda said the reason for the clean-up campaign was to make the town attractive for investors.

"So far we have 920 hawkers who are operating legally and are in possession of permits. That number is even too much for a small town such as ours. That is why there's a need to control the influx of hawkers into the CBD," he said.

"From now on we're going to give each and every legal hawker a card for easy identification," he continued.

Mavunda added that the sale of raw meat in the streets would also be classified as illegal trading because of health implications.

"People who are found selling it will face the full wrath of the law," Mavunda said.

He warned that the raids would continue and that they would take place unannounced.

"There are areas where hawkers are not allowed to trade at all. If we don't introduce control measures, we might end up having hawkers trading even in the mall, which will chase investors away," he said.

The 46 head of cattle impounded during the raid have all been claimed by their owners.

Giyani All Stars lift Mayoral trophy

Giyani All Stars beat Mninginisi Mighty Stars 4-2 on penalties to lift the Greater Giyani Mayoral Cup for the fourth time at a jam-packed Giyani Stadium recently.

This was after the two teams were locked in a 1-all stalemate at the end of extra time.

The exciting Ward 11 side smiled all the way to the bank after collecting a cheque for R15 000, while the Mninginisi lads were pleased to pocket R10 000 for their gutsy efforts.

Their painful loss to Giyani All Stars was somewhat cushioned by the sterling performance of their crafty home girls, Mninginisi Brave Ladies, who went on to beat Loloka City Farmers 2-0 in regulation time to claim the R10 000 first prize in the women's final.

The well-known Ward 16 ladies' soccer team has previously represented both Greater Giyani Municipality and Mopani District Municipality at provincial level.

Loloka walked away with the R8 000 second prize on offer.

The organisers of the thrill-a-minute tournament made sure that no team that reached the semifinals went back home empty-handed.

In the men's soccer category, the second runners-up received a cheque for R8 000 whereas the third runners-up walked away with R6 000 plus soccer balls.

In the ladies' category, second runners-up received R6 000 plus soccer balls.

Greater Giyani Mayor Patrick Hlungwani said the main aim of the tournament "is to contribute to the development of sports in the entire municipality through the support of talent among youth".

He congratulated both the losers and winners, and urged those who did not make it to work harder next year.

"That you have lost today does not mean it is the end of the world. You still have time to come back here next year and do better than you did this year," he said.
